BIG FIRE AT ST. AUGUSTINE.

Many Injured—One Will Die—Loss About $400,000.

St. Augustine, Fla., April 2.—St. Augustine was visited at an early hour this morning with a spectacular and thrilling conflagration which caused property losses of about $400,000, a number of serious casualties and the wiping out of more than two solid blocks of the heart of the city. The sleeping community of residents and thousands of visitors were aroused shortly after 1 o'clock by a general alarm of fire and the center of the city was seen to be a blaze of light, visible from the very outskirts of the city.

Promptly the fire department was out and at work and in a very short space of time thousands of people had assembled on the scene. The fire was found to have originated on the second floor in the rear of the Florida House, one of the oldest frame hotels of St. Augustine.

In a short time the entire structure was a seething furnace of flames and the guests fled for their lives, many in their night clothes. Many miraculous escapes were experienced, and in spite of the early warning of the guests, a number of them were seriously injured. The Florida House burned so rapidly that nothing was saved and the guests lost practically all of their personal effects.

While a number of people were injured, principally guests of the Florida House, only two were seriously hurt and one probably fatally. Miss Alice Smith, of Amherst, Nova Scotia, jumped from the third story of the hotel and sustained injuries from which it is believed she cannot recover.

W. F. Giddings, of Granby, Quebec, had a narrow escape, and as a result is laid up in the hospital with a broken ankle. Mr. Giddings was a guest at the Florida House and occupied a room on the second floor.

In narrating his experience to a press representative, Mr. Giddings stated that he was aroused from sleep by a cracking noise to find that his room was filled with smoke and flames breaking through the walls. He was partially overcome and he blindly made his way to the veranda roof, and after assuming a hanging posture at the edge of the roof he dropped to the ground. He is a heavy man and in falling he broke his ankle and was badly shaken up by the fall. He will recover.

A number of others were less seriously hurt and a number of them were taken to a hospital.

Pittsburg Bank Cuts Big "Melon."

Pittsburg, Pa., April 1.—In order to avoid large participation in the Federal reserve bank, soon to be organized under the new currency system, the German National Bank of Allegheny today divided among its stockholders a dividend of 300 per cent, amounting to $600,000. The bank had accumulated a surplus of $900,000, and as every national bank must subscribe to the stock of the Federal reserve bank in proportion to its capital and surplus, it was decided to reduce the surplus.

Children's Diseases Very Prevalent.

Whooping cough is about everywhere. Measles and scarlet fever almost as bad. Use Foley's Honey and Tar Compound for inflamed throats and coughing. Mrs. L. C. ## Cyclone in Georgia.

Hartwell, Ga., March 31.—A cyclone passed over the lower part of Hart county yesterday, blowing down a lot of timber and a tenant house and large barn of L. H. Cobb. The scope of the cyclone was not very wide. No one was hurt.

This task will be left to the supervision of the Federal Reserve Board, yet to be appointed by President Wilson. The organization committee announced that all information it has collected shall be placed at the disposal of the banks and the board when the establishment of branch banks is considered.

In its announcement the committee called attention to the fact that under the requirements of the act it could not find grounds for the establishment of more than one bank on the Pacific coast, but held out the hope that in the near future another bank would be authorized by Congress and located somewhere in this great section.

The next step to be taken by the organization committee will be notification to banks entering the system of the plans for the districts. This notification will follow the formal certification to-morrow of the committee's action to the Comptroller of the Currency.

UNCLE JOSH FOR THE SENATE.

Will Make Race this Summer—Feels Confident of Success.

Columbia, April 2.—There will be general interest throughout the State at the announcement that J. W. Ashley, better known as "Uncle Josh," will stand for election to the State Senate from Anderson county this summer. Mr. Ashley has served in the House of Representatives from Anderson for a score of years and is widely known throughout the State. Senator Geo. W. Sullivan, who has represented Anderson county so ably in the upper chamber for eight years, will not offer for re-election.

The announcement that Mr. Ashley would run for the Senate was made yesterday afternoon. As taken from a local story in the Anderson Mail, Mr. Ashley's announcement of his candidacy was positive. The story reads:

"Uncle Josh" Ashley was in the city for a few hours to-day, 'just to see what the boys are doing,' as he declared when talking with a representative of the Daily Mail. He says that he can leave home only in rainy time, when the plows are not working. 'Yes, I'm in the race for the State Senate, and I am going to run like a scared rabbit,' stated the well known legislator. 'I expect to win easily over the other boys who might come out.'

There was talk here during the General Assembly that W. A. Huggins, of Honea Path, would make the race for the Senate from Anderson county, and the name of T. Frank Watkins, of the Anderson bar, has been mentioned as a possible candidate for the same position.

Mr. Ashley lives near Honea Path and is one of the largest farmers of Anderson county.

Lumber Co. Wins $15,000,000 Suit.

Jackson, Miss., April 1.—Contentions of the Edward Hines Lumber Company in a suit involving $15,000,000 worth of timber lands in this State, were upheld in a decision of the Mississippi Supreme Court today. The State Attorney General brought suit against the company to enforce a law providing that corporations could not hold more than $2,000,000 worth of land in Mississippi. The Supreme Court held the law constitutional, but decided it affected only domestic corporations.

CLEMSON COLLEGE EXTENSION WORK.

Developing the Home Garden. (By F. J. Crider, Associate Professor of Horticulture.)

The development of the home fruit and vegetable garden is one of the most important problems in connection with the upbuilding of the horticultural resources of our State. The home garden paves the way, as it were, for the larger operations of fruit and vegetable growing. It is always the forerunner of commercial development. From it has evolved all the great fruit and vegetable interests of the country. Small and unpretentious as it may appear, it has been the trial ground and propagating field where the fitness of numerous given sorts have been proved and where almost all of our varieties of high quality and commercial merit have been produced.

In view of the fact that fruits and fresh vegetables are appreciated by all classes of people, in the city, town and country, it is surprising how little attention is given to the growing of them by those who have the proper facilities and locations at their command. Both of these healthful products of the garden should have a regular and permanent place on the family bill of fare, but in many instances their culture has been neglected to such an extent that they are considered almost a luxury. Instead of seeing, as one travels throughout our State, orchards containing the best varieties of practically all the different kinds of fruit maintained in a thrifty condition, what do we see? In the majority of cases we see only a few trees of the commonest kinds of fruit occupying the waste corners about the home grounds or standing here and there in the cotton and corn fields with every evidence of neglect. Instead of seeing well kept gardens, producing in abundance a variety of fresh vegetables for the table every day in the year, what do we see? All too often we see in the spring only a few of the hardy vegetables such as cabbage, onions and turnips. In the mid-summer a few of the frost tender sorts, as beans, tomatoes and squashes, and a little later in the season a bountiful crop of weeds.

Most farmers and suburban dwellers make some effort to grow fruit and vegetables for home use, but in the majority of cases they do not grow enough to supply their families, and that which they do grow is often inferior in quality. It is a common sight to observe people on their way home from town stop at the corner grocery for a choice head of lettuce or basket of strawberries, when on ground a distance of less than one hundred yards from their kitchen they could have growing, fresh and juicy, a very much superior product. Not infrequently there are those who have every opportunity to grow and preserve any amount of fruit and vegetables that purchase a constant supply of canned goods of this nature. Think of it! In a land like ours, where these things grow so easily and cheaply, people ordering canned fruits and vegetables from the wholesale houses of our large cities, paying for the cans, the canning, the freight, and besides getting an inferior product.

The opinion has become all too prevalent among the people of this State that our section is not one where high class fruit and vegetables can be grown. We exclaim, when we see the beautiful packages of fine, well-placed fruit and vegetables "sent in" from other parts of the country, "South Carolina cannot grow such produce!" The fault, however, does not lie with our State, but with ourselves. We have all the natural requisites for the production of the very best fruit and vegetables. If we add to this a full share of energy, coupled with a better understanding of the principles of fruit and vegetable growing, the result would prove a revelation. There would be no more craving in the spring time for a plate of luscious strawberries, no more longings for a rosy-cheeked peach; no more unquenched desires for "something green" in winter, and above all, there would be no more orders for canned goods. Instead, there would be a happy, contented household with a table loaded with the choicest and most wholesome diet that our country affords.

It is true that not every fruit and vegetable will reach perfection in each individual locality, but practically every kind can be grown for home use, and the majority of them, if given the proper treatment, can be made to attain high quality.

If one wishes to grow quality fruit and vegetables, one must give them quality care. Locate the fruit and vegetable garden in a place all to itself; plant desirable varieties in the proper way, so as to have a continuous succession, and devote to them the same care and attention that is given the standard field crops, and it will yield a doubly proportionate income. No area on the farm is worthy of more careful study. The value of a few acres wisely developed as a home garden can be made about ten times as great as the same area devoted to ordinary farm crops. A carefully planned garden will contribute something to the bill of fare throughout the entire year, making the financial savings worthy of consideration.

There are other factors which make desirable the maintenance of a well-kept fruit and vegetable garden. The growing of fruit and vegetables in the home garden stimulates a love for natural objects which can be acquired only through close association with things of nature, as is brought about in the cultivation of garden plants. As one's interest in plants increases the work of caring for them ceases to be a hardship and becomes a source of much pleasure. If we have perfected some choice fruit, vegetable or flower, we point to it with special pride and admiration, for every part of its development—the unfolding of the leaves, the swelling of the flower buds, the formation of the fruit, all—are processes which measure the skill of the grower. The charm and beauty presented by a well-kept garden surpasses by far any artificial embellishment that could be supplied.

When fresh vegetables and fruits become so abundant in the homes of our people as to be seen on the table every day in the year, there will be less need of physicians, for the old adage, "An apple a day keeps the doctor away," applies with equal force to the use of other fruits, as well as all fresh vegetables.
